The Beloit Outlook says that Mr. Hol. den Parker, of Milwaukee, sold out his interest in the Parker & Dennett selfbinding reaper for $50,000 a few days ago, and returning to Beloit [gave a reception to the old employes of Parker & Dennett and also to Merrill & Houston's men.

Reports come in from all directions of the sudden change in the weather, and the sad results of rain, snow, and blizzards. In the South the floods are making way with life and property; and in the North, pelting snow storms and a change in the temperature of from 10 to 40 degrees came within a few hours.

It is said that General Sherman has invited General Sheridan, General Hancock, General Howard and General Terry to be present at the Garfield obsequies in the Capitol on the 27th instant. These officers are all entitled to the privileges of the floor on that occasion, by reason of having received the thanks of Congress for valuable public services.

General Lucius Fairchild arrived in New York on Monday, and the State Journal says: "A dispatch from him since his arrival states that it will be about two weeks before he visits Madison. It is over nine years since the ex-Governor left the State to fill a foreign mission, and his return will be hailed with much delight by his hosts of friends. He has been a very popular representative of hts country at Liverpool, Paris and Madrid.'

Stanley Cunningham at last came to a tragic death. For some time, the readers of the Gazette will remember, he was a conductor on the Wisconsin Central railway, and last fall was arrested, with two other conductors, on the charge of embezzlement. The charge proved to have been well founded, and Cunningham was discharged, though not prosecuted. Recently he secured employment in the yards of the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul, at Milwaukee, and on Monday evening while riding on the top of a moving freight train he was blown off and instantly killed. He was a married man, leaving a wife and one child. He was a hard-working industrious man, and bore an excellent reputation until he yielded to the temptation of swindling the Central company out of the profits of certain railway tickets.

Another apportionment bill has been brought out at Madison. It gives the Democrats one member of Congress. Why it should give them one, there is no satisfactory explanation. It if a good thing to be generous and kind to political enemies, but in modern times, there is not much of that primitive christianity which teaches that "whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also," and "if any man will sue thee at the law, and take thy coat, let him have thy cloak also." The way the world goes now, both in trade and politics, the Democrats of Wisconsin should have no member of Congress from this State. They have cheated the Republicans time after time, and the Republicans have borne it patiently, and now that they have an opportunity, not to cheat back, but to play a little strategy, the Republicans in the Legislature should adopt the Oshkosh scheme of apportioning the State into Congressional districts.

Here is another scheme by which to swindle farmers, and those in Southern Wisconsin must take due notice and act accordingly, or otherwise they may be taken in. The patent right robbers are his cell. working in Winnebago county, Illinois, "To add to my troubles," he said, "they and may soon cross the line into Wisconsm to begin operations. The Rockford Gazette gives the mode of swindling under the new arrangement, as follows: "Some of the farmers in the southern part of Winnebago county are now buying patent wagon tongue rights. It takes two men to make a sale. The first comes, says he is doing a big business in wagontongue patents, but is on his way home, and will sell the right for this county for $250. The wary granger declines to be taken in, and the discomfited visitor says, 'all right; but if you think better of it let me know,' and insists on leaving his address. A few days later the second comes along. He heard that the granger has the county right for the patent, and will give him $400 for it. The farmer sees an opportunity to make $150 in a quiet way, and sells the right. The second paps $10 to bind the bargain, and goes his way. The farmer sends his note for $250 to the first, and the swindle is announced that the court was again complete."

THE APPORTIONMENT BILL.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The apportionment bill will no longer trouble our National law-makers, for the Senate to-day passed the bill agreed upon by the House with scarcely anything that could be dignified by the name of debate. It had been agreed that the bill to retire General Grant would be first discussed, but Senator Logan was prevailed upon to allow it to lie over until next Thursday, after the morning hour, when it will be in

This decision disappointed the spectators, who had thronged the galleries with the expectation that yesterday's debate on the subject would be renewed, but as a panacea they were treated to another dissertation on the arrears of pension act, The resolution, introduced several week's ago by Mr. Ingalls, of Kansas setting, not to be repealed, after tormenting gentlemen of both political parties, received its quietus by the adoption of a motion to lay the subject on the table, the vote being 26 yeas to 33 nays.

The unusual number of spectators in the galleries to-day was due to the fact that the New England excursionists have not left the city yet, and Messrs. Hale and Hoar did their best to show off before the visitors.

In the executive session, which was precipitated by Mr. Voorhees, the nomination of P. B. S. Pinchback to be Surveyor of Customs at New Orleans, although only sent in by the President to-day, was taken up and confirmed after a few min-

MASON'S TRIAL.

Washington, D. C., February 21 .-The trial of Sergeant Mason, who shot at Guiteau, is being conducted at Washington barracks, with all the pomp of a military court. There are certainly outward indications that Mason is insane. This afternoon, when the court-martial was in secret session, Mason mounted his favorite position on a dry goods box, and the sentry kept a wary eye on him. Mason, with his hands in his pockets, talked quite volubly to the report- terviews with ministers of the govern-

"You got in a little too much about the rats," he said. "I am not death on rats. I am death on Guiteau. I have more respect for an orderly rat than for Guiteau. An officer came to my cell last night and said rats could not climb up an iron door. He wilted when I said they could. They have stopped me from giving out auto-graphs and photographs, too. That's the way they do in the army. There's a sentry there to stop it.'

Mason went on with his complaint at some length, saying that he would rather spend 160 months in jail that 160 days in

The sheriff went from here and arrested the murderer, and crowd collected to lynch him. They threw a rope over his head, but Deputy Sheriff Mellick and the prisoner struggled desperately, and succeeded in getting out of the door. Some one yelled murder, and then Sheriff Ensign hurried up, dispersed the mob, secured the prisoner, and hurried him to Lincoln on a special train. He is in jail. PROHIBITION.

Madison, Feb. 20.—The special legislative temperance committee, consisting of Messers. Price, Cabanis, Parry, Maxon and Keogh, has held a meeting and will report to the House to-morrow. The eommittee has decided to recommend favorable action on the memorial executive committee of the Wiconsin Prohibition Amendment Association, asking the adoption of a prohibitory liquor amendment to the constitution. Mr. Keogh, although opposed to the measure, did not care to act against the wishes of the majority of the special committee, but stated that he would oppose the measure on the floor of the House. The majority of the committee Messers. Price, Cabanis and Parry, are determined to bring the matter before the Assembly in some other shape, provided no action should be taken on the memorial. They have de-cided to prepare a bill containing the best qualities of each of the bills introduced into the Assembly, and to prepare one as stringent as possible.

In the British Museum is an old guinea, and on the card to which it is glued the following old memoranda: "This guinea I desire may be kept as an heirloom. It was won of Sir Robert Walpole of the House of Commons; he asserting the guinea that it was 'nulla pallescere culpa.' He sent for the book, and, being convinced that he had lost, gave me this guinea. I told him 1 could take the money without any blush on my side, but believed it was the only money he ever gave in the House where the giver and the receiver ought not equally to blush. This guinea, I hope, will prove to my posterity the use of knowing Latin, and encourage them in their learn-

This notice is signed "Poulteney." The story it refers to is one of the most curious in English history. William Pulteney, afterward Earl of Bath, was remarkable alike for his oratorical talents and his long and consistent opposition to the measures of Sir Robert Walpole, the great Whig Minister. On the 11th of February, 1741, Walpole received an intimation in the House of Commons that it was the intention of the Opposition to impeach him. To this menace he replied with his usual composure and self-complacence, merely requesting a fair and candid hearing, and winding up his speech with the quota-served "that the right honorable gentleman's I gic and Latin were alike inaccurate, and that Horace, whom he had est misquoted, had written 'nulla palt scere caipa'" Walpole maintained that his quotation was correct, and a bet was offered. The matter was referred to Nicholas Hardinge, Clerk of the House, n excellent classical scholar, who deaded against Walpole. The Minister ecordingly took a guinea from his bocket, and flung it across the house to Culteney. The latter caught it, and, nolding it up, exclaimed: "It's the only money I have received from the Treasury for many years, and it hall be the last." This guinea, having been carefully preserved, finally came into the hands of Sir John Murray, by whom it was presented in 1828 to the Museum, where it now is, a significant relic of the statesman whose theory it was that "every man has his Cameron and Jeff Davis.

Simon Cameron relates the following:

"I remember one morning during the exciting debates in the Senate prior to to the retirement of the Southern Senators that Jeff Davis, with whom I had been on the most intimate terms for a long time, invited me to breakfast to talk over the questions at issue, and to ask if I would not use my influence in behalf of a peaceful separation. The talk between us while at breakfast, which lasted some time, was quite animated, but all in good temper, but toward its conclusion it became very warm. Mr. Davis was then, as he is now, a man of ungovernable will, and, of course, took positive ground that the States had a right to secede, and would do so unless their demands were acceeded to. I denied this right, and said that any attempt on their part to leave the Union would result in war. Both of us were stubborn upon the diverse positions taken. He got quite excited, and as I was leaving

"'Cameron, if there is an attempt on the part of the North to coerce us, and a war between the States results. I will draw a line through the country at the Potomac River. No,' he added immediately, 'I will draw the line at the Susquehanna, and your house shall be my headquarters.' I answered much in the same temper: 'You will never be permitted to break up the Union, and if you try it, war will be the result, you will be soundly thrashed, and slavery in this country will be doomed when the first gun is fired.' History has verified the prediction. Davis soon after left the Senate, and I have never seen him since."

It Was Bitten Off.

The andedote of the inquisitive man, who asked another how he lost his leg, and, after having promised to ask no further questions, was told that it was "bit off," has been variously told, and often wrongly attributed. The incident is properly told in Scribner, in a paper on Copley, the American artist of the last century. The incident occurred between Brook Watson, afterward Lord Mayor of London and his servant, who, in pulling off his boot, was warned in vain that if he was not careful he would bring the leg off too-which, much to his astonishment he did. As a matter of fact, Watson's leg had been bitten off by a shark in the harbor of Havana; an event commemorated in a famous picture by Copley, which is engraved with the above mentioned paper.

Kissing and Telling of It.

When the wrong man kisses the right woman or the right man kisses the wrong woman—and both sometimes happen—it does not always follow that there is a disturbance about it. The world can never know how much unauthorized kissing has been done and forgiven and forgotten. In the naturally wild and audacious career of the human kind there is a great deal of that sort of business, and it is just as well that it is not cruelly dragged before the public on every occasion. If that were always done it would be very discouraging to a reasonably delightful pastime which more or less concerns everybody. Many of the cares and trials of this world find relief in a kiss; it is a very little thing, uncommonly sweet for its size, and one of the few luxuries of this world which well organized people never get too much of.
Nobody who understands even the rudiments of kissing disdains its practice, and those who have been so fortunate as to reach something of the science of the thing are not easily restrained in their pursuit of supreme happiness. A kiss doesn't cost anything, and it's a pretty small matter to make a disturbance about, and most people will endure a great deal of kissing without getting angry about it and regarding it as a mis-fortune to make public complaint. Now and then, however, human nature is put to an awful test in this way, and human nature breaks down. A man may not be so particular about putting his kisses where they will do the most good; the successfully treated by WORLD'S DISTANCE SARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION. There are some cold, proud women who in some unaccoutable way have got into this world who would not | East Water St., Milwaukee, Wis., be affected by any such talk, but the number of these is very, very few. Whether the Illinois woman was one of this rare kind or not is still a matter of dispute. It is also undecided whether she told the tailor he was a handsome man; she insists that, being a truthful woman, she could not have done so conscientiously, while he takes the op-posite side of the question. What is Wine Made Of?

As wine merchants are petitioning the French Gevernment to put a stop to the manufacture of artificial wines, the petitioners asserting that not one-third of the wine used in Paris is made of grapes, the many Americans who turn up their noses at the juice of our own grapes will naturally wonder what the spurious French wines are made of. An exchange says that there are a number of large factories near Paris in which wines are made from rotten apples, damaged dried fruits of all kinds, beets and spoiled molasses. But there are not enough of these materials to make as much wine as is required by foreign trade. Turnip juice has been worked over into wine, and American cider is the basis of millions of bottles of champagne, but good apples and turnips are too costly to be wasted on cheap wines, such as most Americans buy. Some of the temperance societies might find the returns they are after by satisfying public curiosity about what wines are made of .- N. Y Herald.

Tattooing.

Tattooing, or at least tattooing as practiced by uncivilized men, is an art without a history. No one, as far as we are aware, has made it the business of his life to study the development of tattooing from its rude beginnings. We have not, therefore, the materials at hand for a really scientific discussion of the evolution of "moko," as the New Zealanders call tattooing. As science becomes more thoroughly differentiated, and as specialists arise in this branch of learning, we shall doubtless have books written on Mokology. This seems the most appropriate term for the new study, because it sounds tautological to talk of tattoology. In the course of a few years we may believe that conferences of Mokologists will be held in the larger and more intellectual provincial towns.

When Englishmen first settled in New Zealand they found that the older women had one side of their faces tattooed, so that from one point of the view they looked like men, while the other aspect of the profile revealed them as women. Now the women tattooed only the lines of the lips and a scroll depending from the angles of the of personal ornament.

It is in this shape that tattooing survives among the savage and backward classes of civilized peoples, among boys, criminals and the lower classes of soldiers. This modern tattooing has recently been made the subject of special studies, both in France and Italy. Soldiers are often found tattooed literally all over their bodies. The men who are frequently under arrest find, in tattoocopied from illustrated newspapers or the covers are often imprinted on the flesh by the use of needles and coloring matter. Mottoes are also engraved and marks of trades, or religious and patrilike Loretto and other centers of pilgrimages are also centers of the art of tattooing. Sacred signs are stamped, for a small charge, on the bodies of the pilgrims, and this practice actually prevails in Jerusalem. In Paris and other great towns there are professional tattooers, and the cost of a really elaborate design may reach 12f. or even 20f. Mankind is naturally prone to relapse into the barbarous customs of the past, and there can be no better proof of this than the extent to which tattooing is practiced in the armies and prisons of France ized men have sunk even below the standard of the barbarian of New Zealand. Civilized tattooing is mechanical in method, and trivial or disgusting in subject, while the "moko" of the New Zealanders is designed on sound principles of decoration.

The recent French and Italian researches prove that tattooing in Europe is chiefly confined to men. Roger Tichborne wished to tattoo his cousin, and young lady of rank who tattooed her arm with the name of "Tom." Schoolgirls should remember that, however devoted they may be to "Tom" at the age of fourteen, at eighteen they will find the indelible token of this affection rather inconvenient. But, if all tattooers were as expert as the Dyaks, ladies who love blue china might consent to be tattooed. The hands of a Dyak woman in Mr. Carl Bock's "Head Hunter in Borneo' have the most beautiful blue ornaments, in the most exquisite taste. We have known esthetic ladies who tinged their nails with henna; from this to tattooing a la Dyak dandies should tattoo themselves is a question that may be left to the cultivated taste of long-haired lads who already wear bangles and bracelets, The first young man tattooed in Nankin blue will doubtless have a success, but imitation might prove monotonous. It is certain that Europeans will find no health and power, moral and intellectubetter teachers in this art than the chi- al, of the cities come. The city is alna-collecting, head-hunting Dyaks of Borneo. -- London Saturday Review.

-Any one who is piecing a silk quilt, or expecting to piece one, will be glad to know how to dye silk or satin a beautiful old-gold color. Take green horseradish leaves, steep them in water, make a strong dye; after dipping the silk or satin into the dye thoroughly, wash in soft soapsuds; iron while damp, laying a cloth over the silk. This should always be done when ironing silk or ribbon, even if it has not been washed, but simply sponged.

-An eminent physician says he cures ninety-nine out of every one hundred cases of scarlet fever by giving the patient warm lemonade with gum arabic dissolved in it. A cloth wrung out in hot water and laid upon the stomach should be removed as soon as it becomes cool. Dr. Revillout states that lemon juice, used as a gargle, is an efficacious specific against diphtheria and simple throat troubles. He has successfully thus employed it for eighteen

-To purify a room, set a pitcher of water in the apartment, and in a few hours it will have absorbed all the respired gases in the room, the air of which will have become purer, but the water utterly filthy. The colder the water is, the greater the capacity to contain these gases. At ordinary temperature a pail of water will absorb a pint or carbonic acid gas and several pints of ammonia. The capacity is nearly doubled by reducing the water to the temperature of ice. Hence, water kept in a room awhile is unfit for use. For the same reason water from a pump should always be pumped out in the morning before any of it is used. Impure water is more injurious than im-

Emerson's Tribute to the Farmer.

The following worthy tribute to the farmer is from the pen of Ralph Walde The glory of the farmer is, that, in the division of labor, it is his part to create; all trade rests at last on his primitive activity. He stands close to Nature; he obtains from the earth the bread and meat; the food which was not he causes to be. The first farmer was and Italy. Indeed these tattooed civil- the first man, and all historic nobility ing and digestion that animal waste rests on possession and use of land. The farmer's office is precise and important, but you must not try to paint him in rose colors. You cannot make pretty compliments to fate and gravitation, whose minister he is. He represents the necessities. It is the beauty of the great economy of the world that makes his comeliness. He bends to the order of the seasons, the weather, the soil, and crops, as the sails of the ship bend Mr. Payn tells, in the Belgravia Christ- to the wind. He represents continuous mas number, a very moving tale of a hard labor year in and year out, and small gains. He takes the pace of seasons, plants and chemistry. Nature never hurries; atom by atom, little by little, she achieves her work. The farmer ties himself to Nature, and acquires that livelong patience which belongs to her; he must wait for his crop

His entertainments, his liberties and his spending must be on a farmer's scale. not a merchant's. It were as false for farmers to use a wholesale and massy expense as for States to use minute

He has great trusts confided to him. In the great household of Nature the farmer stands at the door of the breadroom and weighs each loaf. It is for him to say if men shall marry or not. Early marriages and the number of births are indissolubly connected with an abundance of food. The farmer is a hoarded capital of health, as the farm is of wealth, and it is from him that the ways recruited from the country. The men in cities, who are centers of energy, the driving-wheels of trade, and the women of beauty and genius—are the let any animal become cloyed by over-feeding, as it is a slow and difficult who digs a well, constructs a stone and desirable, makes a fortune which which is useful to his country long afterward.

Who are the farmer's servants? Geology and chemistry, the quarry of the air, the water of the brook, the lightning of the cloud, the casting of the worms, the plow of the frost. Utilizing the Hog Product at Home.

the winter can be very well spent upon the hog product, because this can be done at a profit to the farmer. Under the usual custom of marketing the hog pig. The hog is sold, say, at five cents. His ham is cured and sold to the consumer at fourteen cents to sixteen cents. His side meat, in the form of breakfast bacon (a dainty dish used upon the most fashionable tables), is now retailing at eighteen cents. Hogs are shipped to Chicago and other markets, refuse and all costing alike in freight; the product worked up and shipped back hundreds of miles, and sold at round prices in the very localities where the hogs were reared and fed. In the case of shipping wool to a distance that it may go into the hands of expert manufacturers, there is a reasonable excuse. Those who are prepared to make salable fabrics from raw ma-The freight on the wool, also, as well as on the cloth, is light. But with the hog product the case is different. Men do live at the cross-roads, and at most farms between, who are entirely competent to prevent the shipping of hogs to distant markets, the product to double on the road; two profits being made in the carrying, two more by commission men, one at the shipping and the other at the selling point, another by the packer and curer, and a sixth by the retailer. And, don't be startled if we add another, viz., a percentage to the commission man who sells for the curer. We have practiced the curing and selling of the cured product, to the extent of 50 to 100 head, at the farm, and know how simple and easy a task it is. Not hard work, like swinging the ax or maul; not driving work, like the rou-tine of harvest, but light, under-shelter work, requiring no hurry. Cut up and trim the hams, shoulders and side meat neatly, using the trimmings for sau-sage or to go into the lard kettle, or partly for both. Cord up the hams, shoulders and sides in the cellar, on plank, using a liberal layer of sugar, salt and saltpeter on the hams—and on the others if you like. If you do not 20t through this chore in your leisure hours of one day, the meat will keep, and you can finish during the next, or the third. At about the end of each handlings will fit the meat for the Solvent and Sanford's Inhaler, all in one pack smoke-house. This may be a temporary structure, made of 2x4 scantling and pine boards, covered with the same, and if twelve feet square, will do for the hams and bacon of thirty or forty hogs. A small arched furnace, built a few feet away, beneath the surface, with brick, will afford a safe and economical mode of distributing smoke to the meat. When nicely browned, you are ready to sup-ply your own table, and sell fifteen-cent hog meat to the retailer. Nothing can be easier or more simple. As compared to it, dairying is, in any of its modes, complicated. Working up our wool product, as stated, is beyond our reach, but to permit seven profits to be made off one of our leading products, this going, perhaps, across two or three States, where common, low-priced, unskilled labor does what should be done upon the farm at home, should not be so generally permitted. The selling of this product before our eyes, with the seven profits added, is a reflection upon our modes.-National Live Stock

Feeding and Digestion. Dr. G. Augustin Bowen, Woodstock, Conn., at the annual meeting last week of the Massachusetts Board of Agriculture, said on the subject of winter feedvaries with the species and the individual, the active deer requiring a much greater amount of food than the sluggish bear; the young of all animals need also more than the mature. The blood, muscles, and fatty portions of the body may be increased or affected by the kinds of food consumed. The of the influence different foods may ex- Ear corn, per cwt..... versal perfect food; its large proportion of water gives freedom of motion to all the atoms which make up the structure; the casein supplies the muscle and increases growth; the sugar aids combustion, keeping the body warm; the fat lubricates and prevents friction, and the lime builds up bone. Salt is a necessary constituent of food, but the quantity required is very small. Oilmeal is a cheap heat and fat-producing food, and should be better appresisted in this country. One rule of ciated in this country. One rule of feeding will not apply to all animals. The stomach of the horse is small (only half the relative size of that of a man), and it must be supplied often and in small quantities. Liberal watering immediately after eating is wasteful, as it washes the food along too rapidly for perfect digestion. The cow's stomach is capacious and complicated, and designed for storing large quantities of food. Frequent feeding here becomes to be unnecessary, and may cause imperfect digestion. Twice a day is often enough to feed cattle; coarse food remains in Strictly First Class the large stomach from twelve to thirty hours before it is remasticated. Never tive power in all animals is strong, and coarse fodder may all be utilized if fed with other and richer food in due proportion. Calves do best to suck the cow, as the saliva is then better mixed with the milk. By all means feed animals regularly and well, and don't have too many feeders.—N. Y. Tribune.

Ever in the city, put up in one and two pounds boxes; of whatever kind you choose, at prices that defy competition. Discount given to Churches and Parties getting up Christmas Trees

-We sometimes wish that nature had designed us for a hired girl, instead of an editor, so that we could have been independent. In this country "a hired girl' is only another name for affluence and nobility. It is not an uncommon occurrence for a girl to come West, work at regular wages two or three years, and then, as an heiress, marry a bloated capitalist and settle down. It is a horrible fact that, unless something is done to prevent the centralization of capital among the servant girls of Wyoming, a revolution cannot be avoided. -Laramie Boomerang.

-Joaquin Miller is devoting his attention to the prevention of forest fires. His idea is to have the forests all burned over every autumn before a great mass of inflammable stuff accumulates.

A portion of the leisure time during the winter can be very well spent upon the hog product, because this can be UNDER OATH. Successors to the usual custom of marketing the hog alive, certain men get rich out of profits made by handling the product. If it was the custom for farmers to work up their own hogs, having no one between themselves and the retailer; or at least as now, with their poultry and fruits, no one between them and the commission man, better prices would be realized from rearing and feeding the farm pig. The hog is sold say, at five cents. nestly prayed to die, Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs, feet badly swoolen, toe nails came off, finger nails dead and hard as bone, hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. He became a licensed preacher fifty-two years ago, and has preached for over fifty-five years.

-Cornell University under-classmen are having great times. A few days ago the sophomores gave a class supper. The freshman did their best to break it up, but did not succed. Then the freshmen concluded to have a grand supper, and the sophomores made up their minds that at least the President and Vice-President of the class would not be present to enjoy the festivities. Arrangements were pretty quietly made to kidnap those young gentlemen, and the scheme so far succeeded that the kidnapping party fell under arrest.

-Bishop Harris, of the diocese of Michigan, said in a recent lecture before the students of the General Theological Seminary that the secret of Dean Stanley's wonderful power was his sympathy with men, and that he was already numbered among the worthies of England as one of the prophets of the Anglo-Saxon race. He also cautioned the students not to be out of sympathy with the age in which they lived, and not to fall into the mistake of supposing that their knowledge of mediævalism could take the place of mental and spiritual influence.

-The property owned by the "Economites," a religious community founded in 1805 by some German Lutherans on the banks of the Ohio River, half way between Beaver Falls and Pittsburgh, is estimated at $40,-000,000. Every day adds thousands of dollars to this vast estate, and its possessors, who believe in the second coming of Christ, hold the money to expend it in his glorification when he shall appear once more upon the earth. The affairs of the community are managed by Jacob Henrici, now in his seventy-ninth year. But very few people outside of the society know of how many members it is at present composed, but it is said that should their worldly wealth be divided pro rata Territories is Custer County, Montana, among them each of the members of the society would probably have $1,000,-

The Erie Canal Problem.

It is evident that the canals of this State are rapidly coming to a crisis. Last year the revenues fell to $818, 264.61, the lowest since 1825, while the expensess of maintenance and operaion was $1,023,907.66, showing a deficiency of $205,642.45. A surplus of revenue in 1880 amounting to $311,-118.70 afforded the means of meeting necessary expenditures for last year, but for the current year these must be kept within the limits of the revenue of 1881. It is thought that it will be possible to make the ends meet, but the case is growing worse. The revenue for the season of 1881 was only $632,-380, and it is estimated that, for the fiscal year ending with September 30, it will not exceed that amount, which will certainly be inadequate for the maintenance of the canals for the year following under the existing constitutional restriction. In the opinion of Canal-Auditor Place, "unless some changes can be made, the canals will have to be closed by July 1, 1883, at the latest." The falling off in business for the year 1881 does not by any means correspond with the reduction in revenue from tolls. The tonnage carried was 5,175,-505, against 6,457,656 in 1880, a decrease of twenty per cent., while the receipts from tolls were $632,380, against $1,155,419 in 1880, a decrease of over forty-five per cent. The ton-nage exceeded that of 1878, but the revenue was less by $360,968. This is far from verifying the prediction that a reduction of tolls and the total abolition of those on west-bound traffic would result in such an increase of business that there would be no loss to the State. The freight charges on merchandise coming East, including the State tolls, were materially lower than ever before, but the result is not visible In an increase of business. The charges on west-bound freight were considerably higher without tolls than they were for the preceding year with the tolls in-

The causes of the falling off in transportation by canal are easily traced. In and breadstuffs from Buffalo fell from plc dumpling in his beer and didn't say never a word."—Fliegende Blatter.

The competition of the railroads, with the low rates occasioned by the war between the trunk lines, accounts for this in part, but there was a large decrease in grain shipments from the West, owing to a deficiency in the yield and an apparently lessened demand for export. The receipts at this port were 135,601.594 bushels in 1881, against 161,127,892 in 1880, and the ac tual exportation fell from 122,597,913 bushels in the earlier to 90,571,083 in the later year. A similar decrease is shown for the other Atlantic ports. The cause of the late decrease of business on the Erie Canal may possibly be regarded as temporary, but its prospects are threatened by others of a permanent character. How far railroad competition may be pushed hereafter during the season of navigation can only be conjectured, but the improvement of facilities for the transportation of grain from the West by way of the Canada canals and the St. Lawrence River, and by way of the Mississippi, are practically matters of certainty. The situation gives fresh importance to the proposition now pending for a removal of all tolls on the Erie Canal and its maintenance at the expense of the people of the State. - N. Y. Times.

-The bullion output of Arizona, in 1881, as far as heard from, was $9,085,-679, including $5,149,129 from the Tombstone district alone. The copper output was 8,098,495 pounds. The Tucson Star predicts that the silver and gold bullion output for 1882 will reach Dr. V. Clarence Price $25,000,000, and the copper output over 40,000,000 pounds, as that industry is HOUSE, on Saturday, the 25th of February yet in its infancy.

-The year 1881 was one of remarkable activity in the ship-building industry of the Clyde. No fewer than 261 vessels, with an aggregate measurement of 341,022 tons, were launched. In 1880, 1 which showed the largest total of any year except 1874, the tonnage reached 248,800. Notwithstanding this large output, the prospects are of the brightest description, as it is understood that shipbuilders have a larger number of contracts on hand than they had at the beginning of 1881. An unprecedentedly large number of the vessels launched during the year were built of steel.

California has four other counties, each of them as large as Massachusetts, three that are each larger than Connecticut, and fifteen others that are each larger than Delaware. Sioux County, Nebraska, contains 21,070 square miles. Oregon also has several large counties-Grant, Umatilla and Lake containing respectively 17,500, 14,260 and 12,000 square miles. Presidio, with 12,500 miles, is the largest county in Texas. The smallest county in the United States is New York, State of New York, and it has the largest population. The largest of the Territories is Dakota, with 147,600 square miles, and the largest county in any of the with 36,500 square miles.

Queer Ideas of Curative Oils.

Some people still hold to curious old superstitions concerning the curative properties of the oils of certain animals; and to hear the druggists tell of the strange articles called for by some of their customers is to be reminded of the vagaries indulged in by the aboriginal medicine man in his native wigwam. For instance, there are persons who pin great faith still to the virtues of rattle-great faith still to the virtues of rattlesnake-oil, and who believe it is a specific for rheumatic affections. A traveling quack, who amounced that his cure-all was partly compounded of rattlesnake, reaped a big harvest of silver coin from crowds on the square not long ago. There is a frequent demand for pickereloil, which is said to be a cure for deafness, and which is fried from the livers of pickerel. Mudturtle-oil is also frequently called for by people who have stiff joints. It has been but two or three years since all these oils were staple articles in drug-stores. Pickereloil sold for fifty cents an ounce, and turtleoil one dollar a pint. These oils are rarely found to-day, and probably from this very reason are accredited the more wonderful qualities by the oracles. -Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

For Weak Lungs and Consumption. No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitutions, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the indorsements of physicians or patients as the celebrated "Tolu, Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued sales of the article everywhere are the best evidence of its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulat-ing, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be adduced to con-vince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. Further commendation is unnecessary and superfluous, as a trial of this article, having a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will satisfy all those who are afflicted or pining away with pulmonary weakness of the relief to be secured by the use of Tolu, Rock and Rye.—Chicago Times.

Ash Wednesday and Lent.

With to-day begins the lenten season which will continue for forty days, or including Sundays, forty-six days, to Easter Sunday, the 9th of April. The name of the day a memorial of ancient manners, and in primitive times, to roll oneself in the dust, or to cover the head with ashes, was a mark of profound grief. The ceremonies of Ash Wednesday in the Catholic church, in nearly all countries, are a continuation of this ancient or primitive usage. The sombre of the ceremony. monotony the silence which follows it, the confusion of all ranks, and the humilation of all pride which attend the common recognition of the transientness of human life, and the fearfulness of destiny, rendwaukee to visit his brother for a few er it one of the gravest and most impressive of all religious rites.
